I am an older man, yes I am 70 and now retired for one year, I had been scared about retirement, what would I do when I have nothing to do? I used to ask myself, and thus I organized a retirement support group at the Men’s Center about 6 years ago, and that has been very satisfying for me and for some others too. We meet monthly and welcome new members, and we have a core group who keeps coming back.

Well in this past year I became a student again, I applied for and was accepted in a Czech language immersion program in Dobruska Czech Republic, a small town of 7,000 residents, East of Prague, near the Polish border. It is a scholarship program provided by the Czech government to have people from many different lands be welcoming to Czech immigrants in foreign lands. So I became a student again, living in a dormitory, sharing a room with an older man from Brazil. We learned language and culture, though I was somewhat familiar with both since I have been active in the Czech Slovak Sokol organization in St Paul, and the Czech Slovak Cultural Center. And I had studied Czech language in the Army 49 years ago, and still retained some of it, having visited relatives several times in the Czech Republic in recent years and I expect these are the reasons I was given the scholarship which did not include transportation costs.

There were 76 students from 36 countries, about half under age 30, and about one fourth over 60, so it was quite an experience being in such a diverse group, by age and country of origin, and relating together a lot. We were divided into 6 classes of about 12 students each, according to ability. I was in class 4 of 6, with class 6 being the most advanced students. Each weekday we had 5, 45 minute class sessions, in which we studied from a text book, and had to respond in class to questions from the instructor, I still remember being scared when the instructor asked me questions, and I didn’t know for sure the correct answer even though most of the time I got the correct answer! We had homework assignments, and there were always some corrections made on my and others’ work, actually I believe I was better at writing and grammar than most in my class, but less good at understanding.

We ate meals together, all at no cost to us, breakfast was in the dorm, and dinner and supper were usually in a nearby restaurant. So we usually gathered together in small groups, people were very friendly. We took a lot of trips in the nearby towns, and saw lots of points of interest, palaces, monuments etc. That was the way we really connected with the culture. We had an assignment in the last week to go to nearby small village and find out some information out about the village to bring back to class, and we did! Each class also had to perform a small skit for the other classes during our last week, we chose a comic story about WW I and Good Soldier Swek, who faked lots of things including illness to try to get out of serving. It was fun, and I was one of the soldiers in the hospital acting sick!

We spent our final day in Prague, touring the President’s Castle, and being greeted in the gardens there by the President’s wife. That was fun, and then the next day I boarded a plane for home, wow, what an experience, being an older man can have lots of interesting elements to it. I am glad I went, and glad to be home.

Re-FIREment! Staying Young While Getting Older — BY NORM PETRIK

You know, I liked it better when I could take up the whole two hours on just me
Greetings from the Board Chair

ummer’s rolled along and I can say that this sun baked cranium hasn’t anything even remotely profound to attempt in this space at this time. So I’ll use a few lines to remind you good kind-hearted souls that the work of the Men’s Center moves on volunteer power and it’s is always gratifying to be around those whose energies are directed toward the common good of, in this case, men and that there is no profit motive or other ulterior goals. One could say that we operate a “green operation” since we run on “clean” fuel.

As an example I’d like to direct your eyes to last issue’s lead article which highlights a few guys making their contribution on a fairly cutting edge social issue, that of men in transition from the corrections system who none of us want to see fall back into old patterns. Such endeavors expands the mission of the Center, employs untapped expertise, and inspires new efforts to find new funding sources so that those attending these and other support groups of limited means can be helped.

I have told my kids during numerous mini-lectures that at the end of the day if you have found that your time and thoughts have been fully directed toward your own personal interests, I hope that day feels a little unsatisfying. So many men at the center have stepped out of the other routines to simply give what they can for a few hours and sometimes quite a big chunk of time. They are society’s heroes, here and elsewhere, not the dudes and dudettes who capture headlines

LIVE LONG AND PROSPER,

Emotional Abuse Support Group: Turning the Last Page

BY L. DUDLEY

fter eight years, Tracy of the Emotional Abuse Support Group (EA Support Group) will be leaving the Men’s Center. The Emotional Abuse Support Group was created out of the need to address issues necessary to support the communities and members of the Men’s Center. During those eight years on Thursday night, Tracy created an environment to which people could find a safe place to heal and learn. Through her own experience and education, Tracy shared her knowledge and support for others to gain skills and self-awareness in re-establishing their own personal boundaries and self-worth.

Those that came to the EA Support Group were representative of all of the demographics to whom the Twin Cities’ Men’s Center provide services and support. Those that came also found kindness, empathy and understanding. While hundreds have attended the EA Support Group, thousands have benefited from Tracy’s work, generosity and support through sharing with their family and friends.

Once healed and strengthened, many members would move on — an inherited compliment to the Emotional Abuse Support Group; occasionally dropping in to share their gratitude and stories of their families, spouses, grandchildren and professional accomplishments.

Tracy has helped many people over the eight years and has made many friends. As with many of the members of the Emotional Abuse Support Group, she is entering new and exciting ventures. Her absence will be noticed, and her work will not be forgotten.

Thank you Tracy

Board Member Resignation

Dear Men’s Center Board, and et. al:

I, Malik, would like to formally resign my position on the Men’s Center Board of Directors and simply stay on as active Core membership effective immediately.

I have recognized with my job and other things happening in my life I am not being effective as a Board members especially towards the grantwriting / fundraising activities. I will however stay on as a member to help wherever the Men’s Center needs me for fundraising, outreach or otherwise. Thank you so much for letting me serve on as long as I have.

Sincerely: Malik Holt-Shabazz
The mission of the Men's Center is to provide resources for men seeking to grow in body, mind, and spirit; and from that foundation to advocate for healthier family and community relationships.

Positive Psychology: Research That Benefits You

Presenter: Joe Stuart
When: Wed, Oct. 19, 7:00-9:00 p.m.

Open to Men and Women

Positive Psychology is a dynamic new trend that goes beyond what is often referred to as “pop psychology” and into legitimate research with practical applications. Positive psychology hopes to advance the field of psychology beyond the study of deficiencies and problems of the human psyche, such as depression or aggression, and into the realm of what makes human beings happy and their lives worthwhile. A few topics to be discussed in the presentation are the factors in life that make us happy, identification and nurturance of virtues, and dispelling myths about how having more money makes us happy. This introductory presentation is derived from a semester long course taught in Autumn of ’05 by Professor Donna McMillan at St. Olaf College.

Joe Stuart is a “wet behind the ears” 2005 graduate of St. Olaf College, receiving a B.A. in psychology. Currently, Joe is working and living in Minneapolis while pondering the next step of his life that will invariably take him to graduate school for an advanced degree in counseling psychology and/or masculine studies.

The Elements of BEING

Presenter: Daniel Farris Braun
When: Wed, Nov. 16, 23, 30, 7:00-9:00 p.m.

Open to Men and Women

Have you read self-help books? One will suggest 7 principles and another 11 or 12. So be it. As a seeker, Mr. Braun intuited and discovered that there is but 1 principle by which to live. As an educator and popularizer, he sought to reduce all the verbiage to one formula. Understand this ONE-Principle and everything else falls in place. As a guide, Mr. Braun simply points at a path, your Path. With just a bit of orienteering your Path becomes the Way of being fully your SELF!

One can spend thousands of dollars on therapy or thousands of hours searching a better way. Save time and money by coming to a three-part workshop to learn and practice a simpler Way of BEING. The three two-hour sessions will each be comprised of lecture, practice/exercises, and discussion. The time between sessions will help for applying and internalizing the method. This workshop provides tools for being your fullest SELF.

A hardcopy of Mr. Braun’s newest manual “The Elements of BEING” will be given to those attending. In addition to the TMC nightly entrance fee (see Presentations), a one-time fee of $10 for materials will be requested. Please, come and bring your friends.

Greatly influenced by his involvement in the ecology movement of the 60’s, Mr. Braun has traveled an amazing spiritual journey, one of meditation, contemplation, and artistry. As an indicator of his arrival he boldly says, “HERE I am!” Yes, HERE we are. He hopes to Johnnypallelse it about this wondrous world to show just how simple it is to be fully HERE… to live the good life. As a neurolinguistic philosopher, consultant, counselor, and life-coach, he helps point the Way. To contact Mr. Braun (via the Men’s Center) call 612-822-5892.

Fitness magazine. In its 2005 survey, the magazine looked at a number of factors to determine the country’s “fattest” and “fittest” cities.

Minneapolis was cited for its residents’ high life expectancy, fruit-and-vegetable consumption, low smoking and heart-disease deaths, healthy habits and good health-care access. The survey utilized data from the U.S. Census Bureau and a federal Health Resources and Services Administration report among other sources. Minneapolis ranked #18 in 2004. Other factors considered were jogging and bike trails, gyms, fitness centers, basketball and tennis courts, the availability of healthy food and parks and open spaces. <http:// www.mensfitness.com/rankings/4> (2005 Survey Rankings)<http://www. mensfitness. com/rankings/35> (Why Minneapolis ranked #5) - City of Minneapolis Website, <www. ci.mpls.mn.us>, 2005-08-10.

Anger Training Moved

The next installment of training for anger management facilitators, to be presented by David Decker, will be offered this winter instead of this fall, as earlier announced. Watch for details in the December-January issue of Men Talk. This training is being provided thanks to a generous grant as part of an on-going effort to keep all facilitators, established and emerging, up to date in their skills and on-track regarding developments in the program. All facilitators are encouraged to attend these sessions.

The Men’s Center News

Fort Night
© 2005 by Jerry Esnough

Rising then falling
Into the endless
Pointing outward
Believing what never goes anywhere

Like a dog aware of table scraps
Inbred hope
From where I began
Ignoring the rules knowingly

Relentlessly suppressed
Within my full days dream
Walking through a vestibule
Surrounded by illusionary light

Night finally falls
The faithful time keeper
Without emotion or judgment
W eighs my wasted day
