Why aren’t we talking about it?

Honestly talking about my child sexual abuse, sexuality and all the subsequent effects has taken me through many layered self-explorations over decades. The Men’s Center has been an important resource through it all, from initially showing me men had complex feelings and could even talk about them and be supported. After a childhood of fear, shame and neglect, I learned to talk about myself and my life and feel the support of having others listen and understand. However, I’ve found child and adult sexual abuse has been and remains a complex and difficult subject that is mostly avoided at the Men’s Center as by men and society at large.

The silence about sexual abuse is certainly not because of a lack of child or adult victims, or a lack of serious effects. In fact, about one in six boys is abused by age 16 and about 10% of adult rape victims are male. So sadly, all of you reading this know victims, many of our center’s members are victims or are in intimate relationships with victims. The immediate effects and aftermath for males is largely the same as for females and is generally measured by severity and frequency of abuse, the age when it occurs and the support available to the victim. The effects of sexual violence are frequently life-long and severe. Males in particular are much more likely to keep silent and not seek support or help. Perhaps as damaging as the abuse is not being believed when they do. I kept silent until my 20’s until I told a therapist I met at the Men’s Center, and some memories of abuse have only come back to me 40 years later. Only now am I speaking more freely about it.

Victims find various ways to escape from the experience but become then cut off and isolated. Ones own body cannot be trusted and “it” becomes alien to “you”. Children so effected have trouble in their child development and become adults with missing basic skills from childhood. Healing from sexual abuse involves trying to reestablish a connection to people, oneself and a world which became impossible to understand or even experience. At the same time, the psychological defenses and childhood adaptations to horrible environments that children and adults are capable of make it very stigmatizing and simply incorrect to see abuse survivors as wounded, limited, scared or fragile people. In many ways, I have come to feel my abusive past gives me very powerful insights into others, great strengths and access to spiritual perspectives of life that others perhaps lack.

Talking to others and experiencing support, acceptance and understanding is a basic feature of healing. But it is especially difficult for men and boys in a society that is very uncomfortable with seeing males as helpless victims. We all want to avoid this truth and say, “It’s over now, get on with your life”, “Can’t you just get over it now?” and “Forget it. It was just sex.” But I cannot seem to completely forget though it helps for a while. And many have encouraged me to try.

I recently decided it would help me to talk more about my experience with other men. I sought an abuse survivor’s group for the safety and understand like minded men could provide. But in this land of 10,000 groups for shopping addiction to alcoholism, I could not find a group for male child sexual abuse victims. Over and over, I was told “We can’t find men who want to talk about it, or they don’t show up when they say they do.” Right now, I find the silence around these issues unbearable.

Women beginning in the 70’s created Rape Crisis Center’s and over the long term have made great improvements in the awareness of sexual violence. Men have benefited from this but have not found their own voice. And many male survivors tell me Rape Crisis Centers often do not respond in helping ways to male victims. This is my experience as well. I believe especially young adults and children benefit from frequently hearing age appropriate messages that help them speak up for themselves and get help in all the situations they are likely to get into, as well as the potentially truly abusive ones. Prevention and early detection of abuse is key.

Many might see this as a “women’s issue” but I can’t support that.

Greetings from the Chair

Greetings from the Chair

The financial health of the Men’s Center is often a reflection of the general economy. We have seen a decline in some areas of donations. We are presently able to maintain without a reduction of services.

What you can do to help. Consider updating your membership, if you have not already done so. We continue to send out the Men Talk to people long after their memberships have expired. If possible, a special donation would go a long way in keeping the services we offer going strong.

In gratitude for your interest and support of the Twin Cities Men’s Center.

Bobby Schauerhamer, Chair of the Board

Breaking the Silence continued from pg 1

Men need to speak out for themselves, about themselves. Where are the men involved in this issue? What would help you “find your voice” and be part of the healing of our community?

Resources:

The web site www.jonhopper.com is a psychologist at the Harvard Psychiatry school. He has an accurate summary of statistics and what is mostly known and not known.

www.malesurvivor.org, is a very active web site for males and “friends and family” overcoming sexual victimization. Men can read publicly viewable messages, can communicate anonymously and can join the site to participate in a non-public member area. Real time chat, private messaging and bulletin board messages are available.

Victims No Longer, by Mike Lew is a good book on male child sexual abuse effects and healing. What keeps you from speaking about this issue? How often has this come up in our groups and lives and do you feel able to respond effectively?

PRESENTATIONS

Nearly every Wednesday evening, the Men’s Center is proud to offer a presentation on a wide range of subjects of interest to men as well as to our community. This tradition has been part of the Men’s Center offering since it’s founding 30 years ago. These drop-in meetings require no pre-registration, and volunteer experts in the respective subjects conduct them all. Because of our primary mission, all presentations are for men only unless it is otherwise indicated in the individual descriptions.

Please read through these various descriptions to determine which is of interest to you, and consider bringing a friend. This could be an excellent introduction to the Men’s Center for them.

Each presentation is intended to foster personal growth and to stimulate interest in the topic.

Our presenters include: Jim Gerharter, Ron Kilgore, Kelley Lorix, Andy Mickel, Chris Olson, Steven Peters, Ed Sellner, and Linda Wray.

A small fee is collected at the door for each person attending:
Non-Members of TMC – $5,
Regular Members ($20 level) – $3
Sustaining Members – FREE

All presentations meet at The Men’s Center, 3249 Hennepin Ave. So., Suite S5, Minneapolis, MN 55408.

We welcome your suggestions for new topics and presenters. Please call Randy at 612-822-5892 with your ideas.

The Men’s Center does not endorse, take no specific position, nor does it hold any opinion on the presentations, or of any information imparted, or of the presenter(s) themselves. Presentations are the sole product and responsibility of the presenter(s).

A Circle of Warriors

Presenter: Andy Mickel
When: Wed, Aug. 13, 7:00-9:00 pm

The Mankind Project is an organization of men working together to improve their lives and help other men. As New Warriors “We are an order of men called to reclaim the sacred masculine provides a model for men to generate and maintain a world in such a way as to include and yet rise above one’s own issues for the betterment of one’s self, one’s own family, tribe, nation and race.”

We are all familiar with a man’s physical tools (a hammer, a sword, a plow...) Is this enough? What about integrity, commitment, action and clarity? I know that most men want and need these tools. The New Warrior Training Adventure can help. Join a circle of warriors to ask questions and hear how the adventure has changed men’s lives.

“The initiation of men is the hope of the world.” — Don Jones, former chairman, Mankind Project.

The Double: Male Eros, Friendships, and Mentoring

Presenter: Mary Gray
When: Wed, Sep. 17, 7:00-9:00 pm

Every man carries within his soul a psychic pattern of energy called a “double,” a significant archetype of male relatedness reflected in our need for other men. Whether one is straight or gay, this inner pattern is expressed in male relationships of love, tenderness, and joy, and is reflected in how we relate to our fathers, sons, brothers, friends, and lovers. Ed will explore some of the significant double relationships in human history and literature, and what they can teach us about ourselves.

Ed Sellner is professor of theology and spirituality at the University of St. Catherine, and the author of numerous articles and ten books, including most recently “Finding the Monk Within” (Paulist Press, 2008). He also created ten years ago, and continues to facilitate a men’s spirituality series at Wisdom Ways in St. Paul. He is presently working on a book about the double.

The Mediation Option

Presenter: Chris Olson
When: Wed, Sep. 24, 7:00-9:00 pm

Open to Men and Women

All of us experience disagreements or disputes during our lifetime. We will explore mediation as an alternative to hiring attorneys and using the court system to resolve disputes. This low or no cost option can be especially effective when issues arise concerning co-parenting. and family issues with former spouses or partners. Crafting your own agreements has been proven to be more empowering and results in much stronger and lasting agreements than those decided in the courtroom. Mediation allows both parties to hear each other’s concerns while the well-being of children is placed at the highest priority. Whether between former partners, family members, neighbors, your landlord or tenant, within the business community or in a school setting, learn how various mediation options could resolve your dispute.

Chris Olson is a Men’s Center member and a mediator with the non-profit Community Mediation Services. He mediates all issues and has a strong background in family, juvenile and housing issues.

“Rekindling the Unselfish Way” is the theme of the 24th Annual Minnesota Men’s Conference, Sept 30-Oct 5, at Camp Miller in Minnesota. $750, $150 deposit by Sept 1st. Young men (ages 13-29) $400, $75 deposit. “There has been tremendous pressure these last years to regard selfishness as the normal way, perhaps, the American Way. Big money interests get what they want, many suffer - especially the jobless, the children and the returning veterans. It would be good for grown men to imagine what a more unselfish road would look like. There needs to be discussion - in what way do men encourage each other to be selfish? How can we change that habit? What might be a way to begin?" - Robert Bly. Teachers include: Danny Deardorff and Martin Shaw, with their great love of old stories and myths, will bring us tales about Rekindling the Fiery Horses of Generosity through the Waters of Longing, Malidoma Somé and Miguel Rivera, whose voices are deeply rooted in the indigenous world of Nature, will talk to us about what happens when we become disconnected from that generous source. Tom Gambell, with his compassionate, open-hearted Alkido, and Doug Voxxoss, with his arrows of love songs, will courageously lead us to break down the Dungeon Walls of Selfishness. Robert Bly and Haki Madhubuti, great lovers of the spoken word, fierce and outspoken defenders for social justice and fierce long friends, join together once again to encourage and harangue us, as only true elders can, towards the righteous path of the Unselfish Way.

Along with nearly 50 other state agencies and organizations, the Men’s Center is co-sponsoring a free, 1-day interfaith conference “Open Doors - Open Hearts: Spiritual Transitioning After Prison and Recovery” Sat., Oct. 11, 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. to be held at The Recovery Church, West Campus, at Wesley United Methodist Church, (next to the Minneapolis Convention Center), 101 E Grant St Minneapolis, MN 55403. Focus “What Are the Issues Opportunities, and Next Steps Around Spiritual Transitioning After Prison and Recovery?” Using an “Open Space” model of co-creation, we will bring together those who are in transition, community service professionals, and representatives of spiritual communities in the Twin Cities to share ideas and perspectives. All participants will have an equal opportunity to be heard and to contribute to the outcomes. To Register: <conference@am.com> or 651-644-5851 Include name, address, phone number, e-mail, sponsoring organization (if any), and if you wish a vegetarian lunch. - Don Haunant, 2008-07-10.
