Family courts routinely deprive divorced fathers not only of their own children, but even many constitutional rights.

For example, do you think judges should have the power to decide to which religion your children must belong and which churches they may be prohibited from attending? In December 2009 a Chicago judge did exactly that.

Cook County Circuit Judge Edward Jordan issued a restraining order to prohibit Joseph Reyes from taking his three-year-old daughter to any non-Jewish religious activities because his ex-wife argued that would contribute to “the emotional detriment of the child.” Mrs. Rebecca Reyes wants to raise her daughter in the Jewish religion, and the judge sided with the mother. Joseph Reyes’ divorce attorney, Joel Brodsky, when he saw the judge’s restraining order, said, “I almost fell off my chair. I thought maybe we were in Afghanistan and this was the Taliban.”

Mr. Reyes took his daughter to church anyway. Soon he was back in court to be prosecuted for contempt in violating the family court order.

In my opinion, this case is a good illustration of the dictatorial power of the family courts. The choice of a church should be none of the government’s business, even if the parents are divorced, and “best interest” should be decided by parents, not judges.

Not only did the family court try to take away a father’s parental rights and his freedom of religious rights, but also his First Amendment free-speech rights. It’s important to shine the light of publicity on the outrageous denial of parental rights by the family courts.

Where did family court judges get the power to decide? Family court judges have amassed this extraordinary power by co-opting and changing the definition of a time-honored concept: “the best interest of the child.”

This rule originally came from English common law as compiled by William Blackstone in 1765, and meant that parents are presumed to act in their own children’s best interest. For centuries, English and American courts honored parents’ rights by recognizing the legal presumption that the best interest of a child is whatever a fit parent says it is, and should not be second-guessed by a judge.

However, when U.S. state legislatures revised their family-law statutes in the 1970s, the “best interest of the child” became disconnected from parents’ decisions. Family courts assumed the discretion to decide the best interest of children of divorced and unmarried parents, and enforce their opinions by using their power to send parents to jail and to tell them how they must spend their money.

The notion that persons other than parents should decide what is in a child’s best interest is illustrated by the slogan “it takes a village to raise a child.” I believe that those who use that slogan understand “village” to mean government officials and employees of the courts, the public schools, and the departments of children and family services.

I think the “best interest” rule is subjective; it’s a matter of individual opinion. Parents make thousands of decisions about their children, and should have the right to make their decisions even if they contravene so-called experts. Whether the decision is big (such as where to go to church or school), or small (such as playing baseball or soccer), there is no objective way to say which is “best.”

Since judges are supposed to base their decisions on evidence presented in open court, and there is no objective basis for deciding thousands of questions involved in raising a child, judges often call on the testimony of expert witnesses. A big industry has grown up of psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, custody evaluators, and counselors who are eager to collect fees for giving their opinions. Having opinions produced by persons with academic degrees is a way to make subjective and arbitrary judgments appear objective. With the volume of cases coming through family courts, judges can evade responsibility for controversial decisions by rubber-stamping opinions of these court-appointed experts.

This author has experienced subjective bias first-hand. I was falsely accused of domestic abuse by my wife so that she could obtain citizen-
Greetings from the Chair

Running the Twin Cities Men’s Center on a day-to-day, week-to-week basis takes the combined efforts of a large number of volunteers. These dedicated men routinely donate thousands of hours a year to make sure TCMC can continue to provide its many valuable services to the men of the Twin Cities.

It would be nearly impossible to list all of the men who help keep TCMC running, but this column is the first in an occasional series of Letters from the Chair in which I’ll spotlight a few of the incredible volunteers that make TCMC the amazing place it is.

Bill Dobbs has spent countless hours over the last two decades designing and editing this newsletter. If you have any experience with design and page layout software, you know how exacting and time consuming this work can be. And yet Bill has done this, issue after issue, with professionalism, dedication, and good humor. It’s hard to overstate the importance of Bill’s contribution to TCMC’s overall mission, and I would personally like to offer Bill my heartfelt thanks for his work.

Scott Benson is the man who for over 20 years has managed our member database and made sure this newsletter gets to you and more than 2000 others on our mailing list. Because Men Talk is the primary way TCMC communicates with its members, making sure this gets done consistently and correctly is immensely important. Over the years, Scott has quietly and reliably made sure news of our services gets to the men who need it. Thank you Scott for your dedicated service.

Last but certainly not least is Randy Genrich. Randy has been TCMC’s Office Manager for what seems like forever (actually 18 years), and though Randy is now a staff member paid for his hours in the office, he performed these crucial duties for 8 years without pay, and continues to give TCMC the benefit of many unpaid hours. For many men, Randy is the first point of contact at TCMC, and he always makes sure newcomers are treated with the respect, compassion, and consideration we all deserve. I’ve lost track of the number of times I’ve mentioned TCMC to someone and heard, “Oh yeah, the Men’s Center, how’s Randy?” For many, Randy is the heart and soul of TCMC, and I want to thank Randy, on behalf of all the men he has helped, for his unwavering devotion to TCMC.

These 3 extraordinary men are just the tip of the volunteer iceberg at TCMC, and I plan in future newsletters to detail the contributions of other men who are giving of themselves so that others can heal, recover, and better themselves.

ship. She was supported by the Sojourner Project of Minnetonka, MN for reasons of their own. Referee (Judge) Kevin McGrath would not allow any of my 25 witnesses to testify, including psychologists, social workers, ministers and the arresting officer. Witnesses came forth about my wife’s intent to bring false charges of domestic violence. Then, at a second trial, Referee (Judge) Tsippi Wray refused the expert witness testimony of an attorney who was qualified in criminal, family and immigration law and would explain the immigration motivation for my wife’s accusation.

Go to www.immigrationfraudvictims.com to learn more about this particular scam and how false accusations of domestic violence and rape destroy the American family. Or go to Respecting Accuracy in Domestic Abuse Reporting (RADAR) http://www.mediaradar.org/index.php and Veterans Abroad http://veteransabroad.com

Sometimes these rulings are against women, but most decisions are against men, especially fathers. I believe it’s time to call a halt to the practice of letting family court judges make decisions that are rightfully the prerogative of parents.

Bill Ronan, Lic.S.W., is the author of “A Psychological Autopsy of Elvis Presley”. He has 40 years experience as a psychotherapist. He is a single parent who was widowed when his son turned 4. Bill identifies as a victim and survivor of our legal system, domestic violence system and false accusations. To learn more go to his website www.mnhypnosis.com.
The mission of the Men’s Center is to provide resources for men seeking to grow in body, mind, and spirit; and from that foundation to advocate for healthier family and community relationships.

Ancestralization Ritual Intensive August 18-21, (meet at Living Waters Market & Cafe, 12201 Minnetonka Blvd, Minnetonka, MN 55305. Facilitated by Terileigh and Yves, initiated elders in Malidoma Some’s Dagara tribe.

In Dagara viewpoint/village life, Ancestralization is a part of the grieving process when family members die. It is done to keep the community in the physical world connected, communicating with, and receiving help from, the spirit world. Loss of ancestor connection is tantamount to having more unfinished tasks remain their responsibility; they are hoping that we will invite them into our life so that we might together better face common challenges and mend broken parts of self and community. Ancestralization is like the formal invitation to work together, and it provides the pathway for working “partnerships”.

The intensive begins Thursday evening and concludes Sunday by lunchtime. All participants are expected to remain on-site during the intensive. Tenting is available, and some room space is available. Fee is $495 to cover intensive and meals. FFI: Dan Gorbunow 612-987-0324 <thunderbird@live.com> Pre-registration recommended. “When the Waters Rise: Men and the Work of Renewal” As the earth continues its natural upheavals, contemporary men struggle with disasters, social imbalances, persistent stresses, and the horror of multiple conflicts. A cultural wealth of old stories, rituals, companionship, artistic expressions and thoughtful questions would traditionally give men the clues for thriving in the darkness around us, which is deep.

For twenty-six years men have gathered at The Minnesota Men’s Conferences to look for those clues and patterns as they strive to live with more purpose. Old folklore reminds us that the gifts of nature, in the feminine and the masculine, can bring heat and renewed joy into our lives. According to the Spanish poet Frederico Garcia Lorca, something moist, dark and vital rises from the earth to provide great value for the soul.

Please join us this year as we make room at our table for the returning warrior, for the young man learning to struggle gracefully and for the refugee far from home. As we take nourishment and drink from the earth’s gifts let us share in the healing companionship of other men and search the cumulative experience of those who came before us to find sustenance for soulful living.

Gifted teachers we welcome are: Dr. Edward Tick, Director of Soldier’s Heart, a national not-for-profit working to heal the emotional, spiritual and moral wounds of war in our nation’s veterans, their families and communities. John Lee will offer his profound insight into how we can navigate the trouble of regression and men’s anger. Myth tells Daniel Deardorff and Martin Shaw will join us together in a story. Malidoma Some and Miguel Rivera, with their deep feeling for the indigenous world of nature and ritual, will help us stay connected to these primary sources of the masculine heart. Tom Gambell, with his compassionate, open-hearted Aikido, and Doug Von Koss, with his love song arrows, will engage us in two ancient expressions: the power of movement and the power of song. Timothy Young, Thomas R. Smith, and Jay Leeming will lead us through the forest of words to find our own poems of depth and praise. Robert Bly will hopefully be with us again reading new poems & old poems, and creating mischief as usual from his unique vantage of being an Elder. After your registration is received, a confirmation letter with conference details will be sent. - Mark Stanley, 2011-07-08.

The next ManKind Project-Minnesota New Warrior Training Adventure will be held Sept 30 - Oct 2, 2011 at Eagle Lake Camp near Brainerd, Minnesota. $150 holds your place for registration, with many payment plans and partial scholarships available. BOOK REVIEW — TAPPING POWER: A MAN’S GUIDE TO ELIMINATING PAIN, STRESS, ANGER, DEPRESSION AND OTHER ILLS

Tapping Power will be the first book to offer the techniques of Energy Medicine to help men, and the women who love them, regain inner strength and power in their lives.

Throughout the world men are networking—seeking new ways to boost energy, reduce stress, effectively handle physical and emotional pain, sleep better, resolve the inner mysteries of PTSD, develop skills for managing anger, lift depression, heal addictions, solve conflicts at work, have a more satisfying sex life, and play more crucial and positive roles with family and community.

Energy Medicine is proving to be the perfect tool for a great many men. It is action oriented. The techniques are simple to learn. Talking is not required. There are no pills to take. No need to re-live painful experiences from the past. Relief is often immediate. And results are lasting. Though all this may seem too good to be true, new scientific studies reveal that Energy Medicine works wonders. Women, too, are vitally interested in learning ways they can help men to heal themselves and their relationships.
