At a men’s gathering twenty years ago, ten years after coming out, I had one of those experiences all too common for gay people in this culture – a discounting of my identity and place in society – and for a moment was pitched into primal anxiety.

The poet Robert Bly and storyteller Michael Mead were leading a Friday evening session with both men and women present, prior to a men-only gathering on Saturday. They traded stories, recited poems, sang and drummed to a packed crowd in a church basement, all in celebration of the mythic roots of the great cosmic dance between the sexes, that mysterious dynamic of attraction and repulsion between male and female that lies near the heart of creation and animates so much of song and story.

I sat in the front row, enthralled like the rest of the audience, but soon grew uneasy. I was gay and recently separated from my partner of three years, and this was a roomful of smiling, laughing heterosexual couples whose unions had the sanction of law and custom and now were being cloaked in the mantle of myth and magic. How did I and the way I loved fit into the Great Dance? I got anxious as I approached that abyss of shame and meaninglessness never far from consciousness.

Bly’s wit was barbed and wise, and the younger Mead, whose head and torso bobbed and jerked to the driving rhythm of his drum, was a boyish and playful counterpoint to the grey-maned curmudgeon. I couldn’t help being drawn into their banter, but as I looked at the couples around me, observed their knowing glances and easy touch and sensed the electricity in the room, I felt alien and alone. Swarms of thoughts from forty years of closetry spewed to the surface: I was a freak, a biological and cultural accident, an outcast who’d sold his birthright for a mess of porridge. Like many gay men I’d been married, I’d enjoyed a blanket legitimacy as husband and father, I’d known heterosexual privilege first-hand, and now felt its loss keen as a razor’s cut. The months of therapy, the courageous coming out to friends, family and co-workers, the involvement and activism in the gay community, the hard-won self-acceptance gained over the past ten years – all gone in a flash!

Slow down, I told myself. Remember the healing lessons of your coming out. Embrace the exile. Go inside and look again. Beneath the apparently solid couple-fronts I glimpsed the tenuousness of intimacy negotiated day-by-day out of love’s tender longing; beneath the one all-embracing, sanctifying myth pulsed the actual stories of everyone in that room. My story! – it was as if I’d known it for the first time in coming out, when I’d dared to claim it, when I’d learned I could love as others loved, body and soul, with a fullness of feeling and engagement I’d never known with a woman.

Hadn’t our love been as imperfect, and as full of magic and mystery as any in that room? But were there the songs and stories, and how did we and the way we loved fit into the great dance of creation? I could feel my foothold slipping. Remember… go inside… look again. An insight came. Yes, we gays are a people of exile, but so were the shamans, poets and story-tellers who gave form and voice to the Great Dance. Occupying the margins of society, unbound by its roles and rules, they were free to explore, create and push the limits of the possible. Standing inside and outside at once, they could see life whole, at the core, and could speak for all of us.

Bly and Mead continued to weave their tapestry of song and legend – the marriage of Sky and Earth, the tales of the Monkey God, the creation of the Mud People and of Adam and Eve – but in the more generous, universal way of art, I saw these stories pointing to a deeper truth. Sex and gender were only two ways of imagining it. Any tale of encounter – whether focused on differences in race, age, class, ethnicity, species, spirit-form or simply the archetypal Meeting with the Stranger – is at its core about estrangement and aloneness, the craving for union, the shattering of the ego and the necessary repair of the tattered fabric of Creation.

Was this rationalization? Where were our off-spring, after all, and how did we people and renew the earth, for isn’t that what creation myths are about? Well, I had a daughter, didn’t I, and I wasn’t alone in this, and many gay couples had adopted or were having children by any means possible, in the process re-inventing and expanding the very notion of family. Also, in our roles as ministers, teachers, counselors, social workers, mentors, “uncles” and “aunts” to the young – all vocations to which we have historically been called – we nurtured, fathered...
Greetings from the Chair

I’m writing this shortly after the close of the State Fair, so my head is still filled with the sounds of hucksters hawking their wares. From salsa makers and shoe repair kits to knife sets and instant popsicle makers, you can shop for a wide range of life-improving products at the Fair. Why, you might wonder, am I starting this column talking about high-pressure sales for things you simply can’t live without? I’m glad you asked, gather round and I’ll explain. Go ahead, come in close, don’t be shy . . .

For a variety of reasons, TCMC’s finances are currently in a precarious position. We continue to hold a tight line on expenses, but our revenues are not reaching the level we need. Certainly, the continued weak economy is a big part of this, but the unfortunate irony is that a weak economy increases the need for our services while at the same time reducing the amount men can contribute to TCMC. So here’s the first pitch: We need your membership or contribution now more than ever. If your membership has expired or is about to expire, please renew it now and save us the cost of sending you a renewal notice. If your membership is current, please consider a small additional contribution to TCMC.

TCMC has been incredibly fortunate in the past to receive large donations from a few men in a position to be incredibly generous. This is an appeal to those of you in this position to be incredibly generous again. Your generosity makes the benefits of TCMC’s services that you know so well available to many more men, and this benefits you, them, and all of us.

Whether you can contribute an amount large or small, TCMC needs your support now if we are going to continue providing the vital and life-changing services that have helped the men of the Twin Cities for the last 35 years. While financial support is crucial to TCMC’s future, so are volunteers who give their time and talent to keep us running. We presently need an office volunteer who is available days to assist our office manager perform various clerical duties. We also need a volunteer to help plan and organize our weekly Wednesday presentations. If you are interested in either of these positions, please contact Randy at (612) 822-5892.

So there you have it folks, the complete pitch. How much would you pay for all of this? Well, that’s up to you, but while TCMC can’t make salsa, or fix shoes, or cut through this? Well, that’s up to you, but while TCMC

Call us about Anger Management Classes.

1976 – In Our 35th Year of Public Service – 2011
Nearly every Wednesday evening, the Men’s Center is proud to offer a presentation on a wide range of subjects of interest to men as well as to the wider community. This tradition has been part of the Men’s Center offering since its founding 35 years ago. These drop-in meetings require no pre-registration, and volunteer experts in the respective subjects conduct them all. Because of our primary mission, all presentations are for men only unless it is otherwise indicated in the individual descriptions.

Please read through these various descriptions to determine which is of interest to you, and consider bringing a friend. This could be an excellent introduction to the Men’s Center for them. Each presentation is intended to foster personal growth and to stimulate interest in the topic.

Our presenters are Harry Greenberg, Kelley Lorix, Bob Manson, Jim McCleary, Andy Mickel, Keith Pederson, Rasheen Tillman and Jimmy Lee Williams.

A small fee is collected at the door for each person attending:
- Non-Members of TCMC – $5.
- Regular Members ($20 level) – $3
- Sustaining Members – FREE

All presentations meet at The Men’s Center, 3249 Hennepin Ave. So, Suite 55

We welcome your suggestions for new topics and presenters. Please call Randy at 612-822-5892 with your ideas.

The Men’s Center does not endorse, take no specific position, nor does it hold any opinion on the presentations, or of any information imparted, or of the presenter(s) themselves. Presentations are the sole product and responsibility of the presenter(s).

Presenter: Andy Mickel
When: Wed, Oct. 12, 7:00-9:00 pm

Mankind Project Minnesota began in 1990 and over 800 men are in our community. We have more than 20 on-going men’s groups which serve as places where men can develop their Emotional Intelligence, practice Accountability to their Commitments of Service to others, and practice Authenticity in Actions and declarations.

This Open Circle enables participants to witness other men practice clarity of self-expression from their hearts rather than their heads. Join us in our 5-round format and ask questions to learn more and even participate yourself if you choose. Our structure is based on the masculine archetypes of King, Warrior, Magician & Lover in Moore and Gilette’s book.

Over 50,000 men have attended Mankind Project experiential weekends for men all over the world to empower men to improve their lives and work together to help other men and families.

Open to Men and Women

Are We Heading for the Perfect Storm?

Presenter: Keith Pederson
When: Wed, Nov. 16, 7:00-9:00 pm

Historically, there have been many diseases that are thought to have been eradicated. Only to have prevention efforts dwindle, and the disease comes back full force.

Once HIV was discovered, named and responded to in the 1980’s the number of new transmissions began to decline. People were afraid of becoming HIV positive and dying! People talked openly about how the disease is transmitted and their behavior reflected safer sex activities.
There was a time in our past when Syphilis had all but disappeared as well. Unfortunately, humans don’t always do what they know is safest – Think Jackass (TV and movie) here - and we sometimes take unnecessary risks. Thrill-seeking aside, humans like to do what feels good! Sometimes what feels good sexually is not what minimizes risk.

Fast forward to the current situation where new infections of Syphilis and HIV are on a dramatic incline (especially among men who have sex with men). In this presentation we will discuss some of the hypotheses thought to explain why we have the increasing new incidence of HIV and other STDs. We will also examine some of the painfully real economics contributing to a serious health care coverage issue facing our nation.

Finally, the combined views will paint the picture for you of what I believe is the beginning of The Perfect Storm!

Keith Pederson is the Project Coordinator for Man2Man, a Minnesota Department of Health HIV prevention program of the University of Minnesota, School of Public Health, Division of Epidemiology and Community Health. Keith also co-chairs the Community Cooperating Council on HIV/AIDS Prevention (CCCHAP). Formerly a Health Education Coordinator for PrideAlive, a program of the Minnesota AIDS Project, Keith has dedicated the past 8 years to HIV prevention education. Prior to working in HIV prevention Keith worked for over a decade in community-based mental health services. Keith’s education is a unique combination of multimedia communications, social work and GLBT studies.

Anger Management Program
The focus of the twelve week anger management class is both education and support. Through class interaction, experiential exercises, lecture, and homework assignments, men will develop new ways to manage their feelings of anger. Following completion of the class, participants can join an ongoing support group to reinforce their new skills. These ongoing support groups will also be facilitated by the trained volunteer facilitators.

Length of Class:
12 consecutive weeks

Number of Participants:
Limited to 12 men per class

Cost: $215 for TCMC Members ($225 for Non-Members)

Starting Dates: Classes are filled on a first come, first served basis. Currently, there is one on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. The last class started Sept. 28 on Wednesday nights.

Please call TCMC at 612-822-5892 to be placed on the waiting list. State name, address, telephone, preferred starting class. Or if you need further details, call our Anger Management coordinator, John Hesch, on the Anger Management phone 612-229-3102.

ADDRESS SERVICE REQUESTED

Donors Wanted

The Twin Cities Men’s Center needs a few contributors to step forward to help us through the remaining months of 2011. Our investments to reach out to the therapy community and to support the PRIDE event were about $2,500 above our normal budget, which about equals the shortfall in contributions as compared to last year.

HELP WANTED

We need a volunteer to help in the office for a variety of tasks, including some computer work. Two - three hours per week. If interested, call Randy Genrich at 612-822-5892.

Thanks!
Randy Genrich
