Who was Ron Hering?
Ron Hering was one of the three founders of the Mankind Project. Ron was a university professor. Ron was a workshop leader on men’s issues. In 1993, Ron was tragically killed in a murder suicide. The Ron Hering Award is a recognition of men who, in memory of and in tribute to Ron, dedicated themselves as volunteers to support people in their positive pursuit of self-awareness and self-discovery.

Recipient of the Ron Hering Award:
Jim Lovestar stated during my interview with him that it was his work he had done with veterans and community gardens that opened the way for him to be nominated and to have received the Ron Hering award for 2012. In addition, Lovestar provides guidance and training for men and women through the work he does for the institute on wellness as in Lovestar’s work through Conscious Body. Perhaps it is Lovestar’s work through the Mankind Project (MKP) that many men are most familiar with.

Said Lovestar, “The Ron Hering award is for service outside of the MKP. It was what I had done outside of MKP that put me in as a candidate to receive the award.”

Lovestar is actively involved with Veterans for Peace and urban agriculture. He volunteers his time toward both causes. Lovestar believes it was his work with Veterans for Peace and Urban Agriculture that contributed to him to have received the Ron Hering Award.

“Those are two things I’m doing. I was told that was why I was nominated for the Ron Hering award. I have the opportunity to educate people about what is going on with urban agriculture. The award is a pat me on the back kind of thing.”

Volunteer for Veterans:
Men are typically groomed at a young age to stuff and bury feelings. While in the military, people learn to bury feelings. With that, what are the psychological and social ramifications of men in and out of the military who stuff and bury what they may have seen and experience in their youth and as adults or on the field of battle? Secondly, how does the stuff and bury influence the communication among family members?

Lovestar shared with readers in a 2003 copyrighted article published in a Phoenix newspaper about his experiences with his father, a World War II veteran. Jim Lovestar’s said that his father “felt the sting of post-traumatic stress. Isolation is a primary symptom of post-traumatic stress disorder and a common characteristic of being male in this country. He told me so little about his pain because we were both male. He was undoubtedly afraid to let me see his weakness. He may have believed I could not understand; or, he may have thought he was protecting me from something that was too big for me to handle. I prefer that he would have told me why he was withholding his truth and then let me choose whether I wanted to hear it. As it was, I could sense the distance between us and lacked the skills to bridge it.”

That may be the reason why Lovestar is so passionate about sharing his wealth of information and skills with people he meets along the way.

Lovestar said during my interview with him that he had joined the Marines during the Vietnam War. Lovestar had a “long time membership with Veterans for Peace. I am a member of the Minnesota Peace Team.” An example of what Lovestar had done with Veterans for Peace was at the 2008 Republican Convention. “We got between police and protesters at the 2008 Republican National convention in St. Paul.

Lovestar said he speaks to young people in schools. “Rather than to tell them not to join, I tell them what to expect once they get in. I tell them about how our culture romanticizes the military. Little things like treating men in the military like they are patriots.

While speaking to students of military age, Lovestar stated “The media shares stories of people in the military who died in combat - they didn't die in combat - they were killed in combat. He didn't die in action he was killed in action.”

“I ask the students – would you consider to give your life for your country?”

Lovestar believes that “When you volunteer, you give your life for your country one day at a time - you don't have to die for your country.”

Part Two of this article will be published in the Feb/Mar 2013 issue of Men Talk.
Greetings from the Chair

The end of a year is traditionally the time for reflection and stock-taking, along with planning and looking forward. Where have I been? Where am I going? Not everyone likes this kind of introspection or feels comfortable taking an honest look at themselves and their lives. If you’re a TCMC member or friend, this is probably neither unfamiliar nor scary for you. But whether you’re an old hand at year-end self-examination or nervously contemplating your first stab at it, I’d like to offer some thoughts on how to look back gently and look forward with confidence.

Just living life, and the daily challenge of balancing jobs, family, finances, friends, and hobbies, leaves most people with little time or energy to stop back and think about it all. Are you happy with the arc your life is on? Are there parts of your life you wish you could change? If anything were possible, what would you change? I encourage you to make a little time to think about these questions. But I also encourage you to be gentle with yourself as you do this. There may be things in the past you wish you could change, or even things in the past that make you angry, either with yourself, or with someone else. But the past is past. Beating yourself up over something you wish you had done differently only results in getting beaten up. And holding a grudge against someone who wronged you in the past keeps you from moving on with your life. Let the past be an inspiration for doing something differently in the future, rather than baggage that holds you back.

So how do you make a meaningful change in your life? One approach would be to think of 2013 as your “Year of ______”, where you fill in the blank with a word or phrase from your list of things you’d like to change. Simply telling yourself that the coming year will have a particular focus can be surprisingly effective at making progress toward that goal. So maybe 2013 could be your “Year of Organizing Finances”, if you need to clear up credit card debt, or build up savings. Or maybe it can be the “Year of Honesty” if you’re thinking about telling your family and friends about your true sexuality. Or maybe even the “Year of Fun” if you work too many hours and need to find ways to unwind.

Whatever you hope to accomplish in the New Year, I wish you the courage to create the goal, the compassion to be gentle with yourself when the going gets tough, and the persistence to stick with it.

Board Chair

The Men’s Center Annual Meeting will be held on Saturday, January 5th, 2013. All members are welcome!

The Annual Facilitator Training will be held Saturday, January 5th, 2013 after the annual meeting which begins at 9am, and facilitator training will begin at noon. We will take a lunch break at 1pm with a free lunch provided by the Men’s Center. Training will continue after lunch. If you have your facilitator training manual, please bring it to the training session.

Randy Genrich and Norm Petrik will again lead this annual training to update facilitators on expectations for facilitators, including setting limits quickly if a group member expresses anger at another group member. We will give needed help on how to lead groups and share our experiences. I hope all facilitators and men interested in learning to become a facilitator, will come. We very much appreciate your help for the Men’s Center by facilitating.

— Norm Petrik, Chair Program Committee

Reset Your Life
Presenter: Peggy Carlson
When: Wed, Jan. 16, 7:00-9:00 pm

Peggy and her friend Carolyn White launched Reset and Design in 2011. “Many people feel lost after a divorce, death in the family or being laid off. Our goal is to give them direction,” according to Carlson. “We help them reorganize their living space while they refocus their lives.” Reset and Design’s initial focus was on recent divorcees and widows or widowers, the business has expanded to empty nesters.

After her marriage of 24 years ended, Peggy soon suffered the loss of her stepfather and her job. Facing what appeared to be insurmountable problems, she managed to forge ahead by doing what comes naturally: helping other people in similar situations “start over.” For more information on Reset and Design, e-mail Resetanddesign@gmail.com.

Come out and sing with One Voice Mixed Chorus!
We are the Twin Cities and Minnesota’s 100-voice gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender and allies chorus celebrating 25 years of building community and creating social change by raising our voices in song. It’s the most fun you’ll have in a chorus - and you get to make a difference. It’s the friendliest audition you’ll ever do! Complete information available online: http://www.ovmc.org/audition-information.html.

One Voice Mixed Chorus unites gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender people and straight allies to build community and create social change by raising our voices in song. As one of the largest GLBT chorus in North America, One Voice is known for its musical excellence, diverse programming, and deep commitment to community outreach. The 100 singing members range from ages 17 to 75, and the “Fifth Section” boasts more than 50 non-singing volunteers. Whether performing in schools, at community events, or on stage for marquee concerts, One Voice inspires transformation through passionate, vibrant, and creative performances. The award-winning chorus, under the direction of Artistic Director Jane Ramseyer Miller, has performed for thousands of people throughout the Twin Cities, Greater Minnesota and beyond and is described by Chorus America as “one of the region’s best ensembles.” For more info, call 651-298-1954 or e-mail operations@ovmc.org

I am grateful for the people who volunteer in the office. They are a big help, along with the many facilitators, in keeping the Men’s Center going. Also, thank you to the TCMC board.

Currently the following are volunteering: Daniel Raemeer, Robert Walker, Rick Charlson, Tony Voelker, Jim Haenary, Dick Madigan.

I still have need for a few volunteers to contact media to promote The Men’s Center. Call me at 612-822-5892.
